Chemical in Drinking Water Credited With Checking Decay of Children's Teeth

10 Year Trial

State Using Kingston, With Water Clear, in Experiment

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Staff Editor)
New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—The first apparent benefit for children's teeth, due to putting fluorine into the drinking water of Newburgh, N. Y., for the past two years was announced yesterday in the official scientific journal, Science.

The Newburgh children now have in their mouths considerably less of the germs, lactobacillus acidophilus, which are known to be present during tooth decay. Fluorine in the water is credited with this drop.

Newburgh and Kingston, nearby, are in a 10 year experiment to learn whether adding minute quantities of the chemical element fluorine to a city's drinking water supply will reduce tooth decay. In Kingston none is added.

This experiment is in charge of the New York State Department of Health. Today's report was made by Sidney B. Finn and David B. Ast of this department.

The yardstick for the tooth decay germs is having 20,000 or more per cubic centimeter of saliva. When that number is present, decay is likely to be less than 100. Before the Newburgh water treatment began, 63.9 per cent of its children had the 20,000 germ saliva count. This percentage in the first year of drinking fluorine, dropped to 52 and after two years is down further to 47.3.

Meanwhile there has been no drop in Kingston, where there is no fluorine in the water. However, the Kingston germ count was not as high as in neighboring Newburgh before this experiment started. In Kingston the count has been stationary at just under 55 per cent.

The experiment has to last 10 years to be sure of results because the fluorine takes that long before showing its full benefits to children's teeth.

Whether the drinking fluorine is any good for adult teeth is unknown.

Found Wandering in Woodland at Beacon

Beacon, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—A 22-day search for Miss Yvonne Escocaine, 28, daughter of Great Britain's representative in Tokyo who had been missing from a private sanitarium here since September 4, ended last night when she was found wandering in woodland here.

Police Sgt. William FitzGibbons said Miss Escocaine was barefooted and in a weakened condition when she was found on a point of land jutting into the Hudson river. She was quoted by police as saying she had subsisted for 22 days on berries and vegetables from gardens in the area. She was taken back to the sanitarium.

The only daughter of A. D. F. Escocaine, who now is in Tokyo, Miss Escocaine was a divorcee and in London during the first two years of the war and later was on active duty as a member of the Women's Royal Naval Service. She came to New York last July with her aunt, Miss Violet Wilder.

The search for two 'teen-aged girls who were described by the New York police as "run-aways" lifted from the Kingston police to the sheriff's office as new information indicated that they were in the New Paltz area. It was learned today.

"Baggage left by the two, Mary Sullivan, 15, of 75 Elwood street, New York, and Nancy Oppenheimer, 14, of 2 Sickle street, same city, at the local bus terminal of the Adirondack Trailways, was still unclaimed today.

Local police were asked in a special message two days ago to hold the girls pending arrival of their parents if they were apprehended. The investigation shifted to the sheriff's office when a later message indicated that they might be found elsewhere in the county.

One of the messages pointed to the possibility that the girls might attempt to secure work at a cinder and on Route 9W in the vicinity of Ulster Park.

Sheriff George C. Smith said he had learned that two girls had obtained a ride near New Paltz Thursday but the trail was at the point where the tip-off was supplied.

Hannegan Resigns as Democratic Chairman

Reason; Truman is Said to Approve Senator McGrath

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan announced today he is resigning as chairman of the Democratic National Committee because of health, and that President Truman has indicated approval of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island to be the new chairman.

Hannegan said he is giving up the chairmanship he took over in January, 1944, on the advice of physicians who urged that he limit his activities. He will stay on as postmaster general.

He called a meeting of the national committee for Oct. 29 and said his resignation will be effective as of that date at 11 a. m. when the meeting starts.

Hannegan said he had suggested Senator McGrath's name to President Truman as his successor and the president has indicated his approval.

Simultaneously, the chairman announced that Gael Sullivan, executive director and vice chairman of the committee, a former assistant postmaster general, who has been exercising full power in Hannegan's absence, is resigning on the same date, Oct. 29.

It is expected that Senator McGrath would keep his Senate seat if he takes over as committee chairman. Others have done so in the past, including Cordell Hull, who served as domestic chairman while a member of the House in the early twenties, and Senator Fess of Ohio remained in the Senate while heading the Republican committee.

McGrath is a former governor of Rhode Island and one time solicitor general of the United States. He is 43.

Vetoskie Makes Price Comparisons With His of 1933

Retired Connelly Market Operator Recalls Sale He Held 14 Years Ago

If you're beginning to think that the value of your $5 bill is dwindling to that of a cigar coupon, consider today's "read-em-and-weep" department supplied by A. E. Vetoskie, former Connelly storekeeper for 33 years.

An anniversary cash sale advertised by the grocer across the Rondout creek in January 1933 listed call ham for 7 cents a pound. This price 15 years ago was a give-away compared to the 52 cents asked today.

Smoked, sliced ham, then brought 25 cents, but ham today is cut from gold bricks at $1.20 a pound if it is smoked and sliced. Fresh-cut hamburger then was two pounds for a quarter, but you'll pay a half dollar and probably a nickel more on the counter today for a pound with the price ranging from 49 to 50 cents.

Boneless hams sold then for 15 cents, but today one pound takes everything from a dollar, but one thin dime, and cube steak listed then as "tender and juicy" brought only 29 cents as against $1.00 even today.

Two prices were given on butter then—47 and 51 cents as against the average 85 today, and roasting chickens and turkeys sold from 22 to 25 cents a pound as compared to a 56-cent average today.

Flour was advertised as 24 1/2 pounds for 63 cents, "lowest price in 20 years." Today a sack this size brings $1.90.

Brooklyn Butcher Denies Testimony Against Parnett

Prisco Out on Probation in Federal Court for Statements Called False

(Special to The Freeman)
New York, Sept. 26—Anthony Prisco, Brooklyn butcher, received a suspended sentence and was placed on probation by Judge Stephen Brennan in Federal Court here today for giving false testimony before a grand jury during an investigation of charges that Alex and Nathan Parnett, Ulster, N. Y., dealers, sold meat at prices in excess of wholesale ceilings.

The defendant, operator of Prisco's Popular Meat Market, McDonald avenue, Brooklyn, contradicted before the grand jury statements about the Parnett firm which he had previously made to F.B.I. agents.

The government maintained Prisco had told the agents (1) that he had learned he could get meat from the Parnetts by paying 7 to 10 cents per pound over O.P.A. ceilings, (2) that he had confirmed this in a visit to Ulster in August, 1944 (3) that he thereafter went to Ulster every other Monday and paid the overage in

Marello, Woman Released on Bail

Both Linked to Kidnaping by F.B.I.; Shannon Girl Denies Plot

John Marello, 35, formerly of Glasco, who is being held for an alleged violation of a federal kidnapping statute, was released on $5,000 bail in New York yesterday. It was learned today.

His release followed a federal court order reducing the bail from $10,000 which was fixed locally following the arrest here of Marello and John Ferguelli, 33, of East Kingston on complaint of Ruth Virginia Fitzwater, 24, of South Charleston, W. Va., that she had been taken to this city against her will.

Mabel Shannon, 19, of Charleston, W. Va., who was arrested there in connection with the alleged kidnapping, obtained her release yesterday on $2,500 bond, the Associated Press reported. She and Mrs. Lois Welch Cicero, 17, of Charleston were being held by authorities there following the arrest of the two men here.

Denies Connection
Miss Shannon declared as bail was arranged before Federal Judge Ben Moore, that she knew nothing of the plan to remove Miss Fitzwater from the state earlier this month.

The authorities charge that the four were involved in a plot to defeat justice through the removal of the Fitzwater woman from Charleston prior to her scheduled appearance in court there as a witness against Marello who was slated to appeal a conviction on a charge he operated a house of prostitution.

Ferguelli was released on bail Tuesday shortly after the federal judge reduced the amount and allowed the withdrawal of a waiver which would have precluded examination in New York.

Hearing in October
It was indicated following this move that hearing will probably not be held before late in October and that both men will face examination in New York.

Marello is scheduled for examination Monday before U. S. Commissioner Martin Convent in this city.

Prince of New York City, Walter Wertine, Jr., of Cohoes and William B. Martin of Kingston. Among the guests were Herman Gottfried, assistant New York corporation counsel in charge of the Kingston office dealing with water supply, and Lloyd R. Merchants Plan Downtown Activity and Organization

A membership drive with a view to launching a new organization of downtown businessmen was instituted at a special meeting of the merchants Thursday night.

Jacob Blinder was named temporary chairman and Henry Singer temporary secretary of the group, and a committee on the solicitation of members was appointed.

The main objective of the group is to secure as big a membership as possible and to interest all of the older merchants of the downtown sector in the organization.

Later meetings will be held with a view to forming the organization and deciding upon a general promotional policy.

Spencer Jones Death Is Called Accidental

No charge of criminal negligence was made by State Police in the death of Spencer Jones, 78-year-old Phoenixia resident, who was struck Thursday night a mile west of Phoenixia and fatally injured. The car which struck Jones was operated by Edward Orth, 54, of Allaben. A verdict of accidental death has been rendered. Coroner Arthur Chipp of Kerhonkson with Corporal John Metzer and Trooper Ray Dunn made an investigation.

The post-mortem performed Friday showed that Mr. Jones suffered fractures of the lower legs, a fractured pelvis and a fractured spine. The accident happened near The Spruce Inn, which Mr. Jones had just left, while he was walking along Route 28 and Mr. Orth was driving toward his home.

Immediately after the accident Orth claimed he had not struck the man but later told Trooper Dunn that he had become panicky after the accident and said his car had struck the injured man.

Mr. Jones had resided with his daughter, Mrs. Mead, in Phoenixia, for the past several years.

'Tapper' in Hospital

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 27 (AP)—Karl P. Hartman, 30, a traveling salesman, today began a 30-day period of observation in a mental hospital as a result of allegedly using a dictograph to tune in on the boudoir conversations of a bride couple. The Hazardville, Conn., man was committed yesterday by Judge William J. Crawford after police testimony was given that Hartman, entering a Springfield home last November while the couple was honeymooning, installed the instrument, to which he attached wires leading to his automobile. The names of the newlyweds were not revealed.

According to Police Captain James Sullivan, Hartman once worked with the bride, drove her home after hours, and fell in love with her. But, she married "another man."

Jerusalem, Sept. 27 (AP)—One Jew was killed and nine others were injured today when British sailors boarded a refugee ship trying to crack the Palestine coastal blockade with approximately 450 persons aboard. The Jew slain was shot by a British sailor who "had been surrounded by a party of Jews brandishing crowbars," a government spokesman said. Two other Jews were wounded by gunfire and a British sailor suffered a broken finger.

Auto Driving Course Is Considered; Program Crowded

Whether a course in automobile driving can be including in the curriculum of the Kingston High School system is now under investigation by a committee which is composed of the guidance director, Mr. Tobin, and the principal of the high school, Mr. Dunn. The matter was referred Thursday evening by the Board of Education after a lengthy discussion of the plan.

A safety driving course is included in several school programs of the state and in many places such a course is approved and the student gets credit for completion of the course. However, such credit is not allowed for college entrance, but is credited toward a school diploma.

The matter came before the board under a communication from Roy M. Suttiff of the Colonial City Chevrolet of Kingston and in conjunction with A.A.A. sponsorship. After a long discussion in which many of the members of the board took part, it was agreed that such a course would be a splendid thing and probably would contribute to better driving and fewer accidents.

The only difficulty which the board members found was to fit the course in an already overcrowded program.

During the discussion it was stated that the mandatory subjects from high school has grown in number to the point where a student, particularly those who plan a course pointing toward college, now find they have practically all of the periods of the school day taken up with class work and "lab" work, leaving practically no free periods for study in school.

The addition of a driving course would take an additional school period and leave some students with no free period for study.

Under the proposal a special accredited course would be required to teach the course. A curriculum, equipped with dual control, is supplied by the A.A.A. and the local Chevrolet dealer and is replaced each 8,000 miles or once a year, whichever condition arrives first. The school in addition to hiring a teacher maintains the car and must provide the necessary liability insurance. The course includes class room instruction and road work.

During the discussion of the driving proposal it was stated that the "overcrowded curriculum" now in effect would make it hard to fit the new course in the school system.

City Moves to Prevent Further Trouble With Union of Longshoremen

Rather than have its entire Port facilities threatened by a complete tieup due to a labor involvement, the City of Albany Friday served notice on Trailships, Inc., of revocation of its docking license. The action is an outgrowth of the longshoremen's strike which has tied up the operations at the Port of Albany since Tuesday.

Trailships, Inc., is a corporation which has been operating two converted Navy ships between New York and Albany to transport loaded trailers. The trailers were to be driven aboard the ships for transportation by water up and down the river to eliminate the over-road haul. The teamsters union objected to the plan on the grounds it would deprive drivers of work. That matter was adjusted and an agreement was made to drive the trailers aboard the ships. Then the International Longshoremen's Association called a strike and tied up the port.

In a letter notifying the company of the cancellation, effective 30 days hence, Kenneth W. Marsh, commissioner of public works, said to the company has had "serious labor difficulties" from its inception here and that the revocation

This Would Be One Way to Avoid Special Session of Congress on Emergency Plan Outlined

Sentiment in Congress Generally Against Session

By EDWIN B. HAALINSON
Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two Democratic senators suggested today that President Truman try for a "gentlemen's agreement" with Congressional leaders to use existing federal funds for stopgap aid to Europe during the next three months.

Senators Russell (Ga.) and McClellan (Ark.) told a reporter in separate interviews this would be one way to avoid a special session of Congress to deal with emergency assistance abroad.

The possibility of a special session call is expected to be one of the things discussed when the President meets leading legislators of both parties in a White House conference Monday.

McClellan said the stopgap money might come from the Export-Import Bank, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The "gentlemen's agreement" would be needed because none of these agencies was set up by Congress for the purpose of giving relief to hungry foreign nations.

But the Export-Import Bank, for example, has $800,000,000 of committed funds on hand and there have been suggestions in several quarters that this could be used to tide over such emergency cases as Italy and France.

In this connection, some significance was seen in the fact that a last-minute invitation to the Monday conference was sent to Chairman Elliott (R-Mich.) of the House Banking Committee, which handled the legislation last session extending the life of the Export-Import Bank.

Against Special Session
Sentiment in Congress generally has been to avoid a special session if it is possible to find some other way of relieving hunger abroad before the long-range Marshall plan can be put into effect.

This plan of assistance for a 16-nation European program of relief is scheduled to be high on the agenda of the regular congressional session in January.

"I assume that the President has some stopgap plan for aid to France, Italy and England to prevent intense suffering and starvation this winter," McClellan said. "Congressional leaders could agree to temporary use of any available funds."

Senator Russell remarked that the Export-Import Bank "is the only agency I know of that has some free money."

He said he would be against any agreement which would commit Congress to acceptance of the Marshall Plan, however.

"If that is what he said," he said, "then Congress should be called back to talk over the whole plan. We want to maintain democracy in Europe and help those nations get back on their feet, but we want to know the whole picture before we move."

He tried several different treatments, many different medicines, all of which did him no good. He couldn't work. Life was misery for him.

Then one day he saw an advertisement of Muscle-Rub—the doctor's prescription—and in desperation bought a bottle. He used it as directed and in 3 days the pains were relieved and Mr. Jordan was back on the job.

Tells of Hurricane In Letter Written To Paltz Friends
"I have seen high winds here but this is the very worst. . . . What a blow!" writes Mrs. Cora J. Lawrence reporting to friends in New Paltz of the recent hurricane at her home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Mrs. Lawrence, her mother, Mrs. George E. Johnston, who will celebrate her 92nd birthday October 2; son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lawrence, safely weathered the storm.

"The city must be a terrible looking place judging from the looks of our street," writes Mrs. Lawrence in an eyewitness account. "One of our coconut trees was twisted off but fell across the street, not striking our house. Lights went out Wednesday morning when the high winds started about 4:45 a. m. after the last radio warning."

"Our house is well anchored because it shook very little, even after the lull, when the wind changed and the heavy gusts struck it from the southeast. We ate our noon meal during the lull, peacefully and it seemed as if the sun was going to shine."

"A little later the storm started again and surely meant business. We have a gas range which was a help as the electricity was cut off; then a water main broke next door and we are fortunate to have a tank cistern. The thermometer stayed around 70 degrees all day. We put piles of newspapers against the door sills and windows to keep the driving water from spreading in. Our porch screens are torn. Roof shingles are all over the place.

"My son, Jay Lawrence's plane, with others at the airport, is very badly damaged. Hangars are ruined. The manager of one airport reports $15,000 damage."

The weather bureau was so sure the storm was going north of Palm Beach and it was very early Wednesday morning when the bureau warned that it would strike Fort Lauderdale."

Mrs. Lawrence, who is connected with Lawrence's Service Station in New Paltz, and her mother usually come north for the summer but Mrs. Johnston was unable to make the trip this year. She reported that the storm was the worst she had encountered in the 35 years she has lived in Fort Lauderdale.

DOUBLE-PURPOSE GREETING CARDS
A reader asks: "We expect our second child this winter and don't want to send the regular birth announcements if we can help it. In spite of your stressing the fact that there is no obligation attached to an announcement, we feel that many people do feel obliged to send a present. The response from our first announcement gave us this impression."

"However, as we have moved around the world a good deal because of business, we naturally have friends everywhere to whom we would like to send word of our increasing family. My husband has suggested that possibly some announcement could be combined with our Christmas greetings. Will you tell us whether you think this would be in good taste, and if so, then please tell us how to do it?"

Why not simply add the name of the baby on your Christmas greeting card. You could put "Baby Girl" or "Baby Boy" instead of just the name alone. Certainly this would not in any way suggest the thought of a present.

The Bridal Party at Table
Dear Mrs. Post: (a) Please explain if it is proper for the bridal party only to be seated at the wedding reception. (b) The bridal party and the parents?

Answer: (a) Usual. (b) Not advisable because it is unavoidably discourteous to the other guests.

Simple Tea for Guest
Dear Mrs. Post: My mother is arriving from a distant city to visit us. Should I take her to call on my friends or, after letting them know that she is here, should they call on her?

Answer: Give a very simple tea for her and invite all the people you think would be interested in meeting her.

Or Prepare the Meal
Dear Mrs. Post: When I was "young" we got a meal and served it. (Not illiterate either!) Now so many people make a meal, which I just can't do as proper. I'd say, "Make bread" but get a meal. What do you say?

Answer: I agree with you.

Do you know the "finger food"? Mrs. Post has written a leaflet entitled, "Table Rules of Importance," which gives fundamental rules. Mrs. LaGuardia was named as executrix of the estate of her husband, who died last Saturday.

WHEN BOOKS DON'T SELL

When an author's books do not sell it is natural for him to blame his publisher and think that if an aggressive selling program had been put forth the sales would have been better. Few writers, however, carry their feelings to the point of suing a publisher for lack of energy. But such a suit has been brought by the Belgian dramatist and poet, Maurice Maeterlinck.

The 85-year-old Maeterlinck is one of the few Belgian writers to achieve worldwide fame. Half a century ago everyone was reading his charming "Life of the Bee," which mixed natural history with philosophy, and his fairy play, "The Blue Bird." They still have their followers, but his other writings have dropped out of print. This is probably one of the developments to which Maeterlinck objects. At any rate, he is celebrating the seventh year of his stay in the United States by filing a lawsuit.

If all publishers were held liable for failure of books to sell it would add new complications to what is already an uncertain line of business.

With all our boasted progress, most of the human race is hungry.

One unbroken political rule is that no one ever announces himself as a candidate for vice-president. Plenty of presidential possibilities, however, are glad enough to settle for the second place, but no one is humble enough to declare himself as merely good vice-presidential timber.

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

National Newspaper Week will be observed October 1 to 3. This period is set aside each year by many publications to tell the public something about themselves. It may seem strange that newspapers feel it necessary to take special opportunities to explain themselves to the public which has a daily acquaintance with at least one newspaper.

In many respects the newspaper is much like any other business, but there is one important difference—the good newspaper is part of the public. It has a definite responsibility to it. What mitigates against good newspapers also mitigates against the public. Their ultimate interest is the same.

A far flung team of workers from foresters to newsboys is kept on the job because every day four Americans out of every 10 who are 10 years old and more, buy a newspaper. Americans read more newspapers per capita than do the people of any other country in the world.

Little more than three generations ago no newspaper in the United States had a circulation of 1,000 copies. Most published fewer than 600 copies a day. Today 300 of the 1,800 American dailies have built their circulations to an average of more than 25,000 copies a day. Total circulation exceeds 43 million daily.

REPLACEABLE AND IRREPLACEABLE

The Europeans response to the Marshall Plan involves a continuing free gift from this country until 1951 of American commodities some of which are easily replaceable, as, for instance, wheat, but others are 'irreplaceable,' as, for instance, iron and steel products.

The replaceable commodities we can gladly contribute, without much anxiety, up to our capacity and as long as the gifts do not so raise prices in this country as to produce a dangerous inflation. Last year we contributed 18,500,000 tons of food, all told, including grain which produced inflationary high prices in this country and endangered our economy. It is estimated that this year we might guarantee to contribute 10,000,000 tons of wheat with a promise to send more if we have a proved surplus. We shall probably be able to contribute other food products if there is a surplus here. And the best way to prove a surplus is by the yardstick of holding prices. It is not necessary or wise to lower the American standard of living although our characteristic profligate waste is shocking. When Senator Taft said that we might eat less, he might also have said that we ought to stop wasting.

At any rate, there is a category of goods which we can share without much concern and fear for ourselves now or in the future. Food and fibers fall readily into this category and as they are most essential for the Europeans, much can be done in this respect. The fact that the Russians have had a bumper crop should help some, for certainly the satellite states and the puppets should prefer to eat Russian grain, particularly as ours is tainted by capitalism. Be that as it may, we ought to say outright that we can give them replaceable commodities.

When, however, we deal with irreplaceable commodities, more thought and care should be given to the subject and we certainly ought to be paid. Shipments of coal, for instance, from this country to Europe, particularly to England, smack of the ridiculous. It is wasteful of shipping and manpower, at a time of shortages, to carry coals to Newcastle.

The Europeans can mine coal as well as we can and there is no reason why we should waste our natural resources while they hoard theirs. That is what it amounts to with coal, iron, petroleum and all their manufactured products. We were profligate with our natural resources and manufactured goods during the war because we were intent upon winning it. War is a wasteful process; it is impossible in such a state of desperation to worry about goods when the lives of our children must be a first consideration. But to continue to export, for free, our dwindling metals and minerals is foolhardy. Averell Harriman's Committee is supposed to give this country facts and figures as to what our resources and capacities are. Such figures have not yet been made available for study and scrutiny and until they are, not a pound of irreplaceable goods ought to be shipped out of this country. Soviet Russia has a good rule about irreplaceable goods: keep them at home.

The last war proved that side can win a modern war whose iron and steel industries, with their associated manufacturing industries, can best be mobilized for excessive production. Had the United States not thrown its resources and manufacturing capacity in support of Great Britain and Soviet Russia, Germany could have, beyond doubt, won the war. The independence of this nation, therefore, depends upon a continued bountiful supply of metals, particularly high grade iron ore, and fuels for manufacturing processes and transportation.

Without these, this country may some day become as dependent upon the supplier as Great Britain is dependent upon us—the supplier. Statesmen caught in the hurly-burly of immediate problems and negotiations, often fail to look beyond their noses, lest what they see paralyze them in current matters. But the American people dare not disregard the profligate waste of its irreplaceable natural resources, because upon them depend the future of our civilization, particularly the otherwise, the needs of independence, must come first. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

MIGRAINE

Many may think that migraine has only one symptom—that is, pain on one side of the head. Though no definite nor single cause has been found for migraine, we know that it is common among those who work hard to gain their goal. They are usually ambitious.

That patients with migraine have a distinct type of personality is stated by Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, in the "American Journal of Medicine Sciences." He bases his statements on his observations of 500 cases. He points out that headache is only one of the migrainous person's characteristics. In addition to headache, there is hypersensitiveness, quickness of thought and movement, the tendency to be tense, to worry, to tire easily and with suddenness. If you think of some friend or acquaintance who suffers with migraine, you'll find that practically all of them have these characteristics.

"Such qualities as perfectism, a dislike for the preference for quiet, high spirits and a dislike for crowds have been noted so often in the series of 500 cases as to suggest that they are also characteristics of the migrainous individual." Some cases of migraine may not have the headache but have spells of mild depression and a dazed uncommunicative state of mind.

Unfortunately, many of these migrainous individuals work so hard themselves that they are impatient with those who take things more leisurely and are satisfied with doing things their own way. Among the married women in this series of 500 cases, because of the frequent spells of illness, and the perfectionist demands they often make on their husbands unhappy marriages are not uncommon.

Although the drug ergotamin tartrate (gynergen) and inhaling 100 per cent oxygen gives relief, the physician must bear in mind the type of personality and the stresses and strains in the patient's life. There must be a reduction of overwork, of fretting and worrying, and adjustment to everyday activity to acquire calmness of spirit.

evaluate to the last degree. The National Dry Goods Association, observing that department stores and newspapers of this country had grown up together, declares: "In strong retail stores, large and small, newspaper advertising today is the spine of promotional activities, and it is hardly questionable whether many stores could exist without it."

The support of retail advertising has largely helped to make it possible for the American press to perform public services unconceived years ago.

A.F.L. STAND ON COMMUNISTS

The gloved hand of the Taft-Hartley law is not closing readily on the hairy monster of union power, but the grappling has only begun and the fingers of the law may eventually sprout claws.

One unexpected result of the law is the enormous loss of public support suffered by William Green and the national executive council of the American Federation of Labor for their inexcusable refusal to sign affidavits that they are not Communists. They had been whooping against Communism in the abstract and calling for ousting of all Reds from labor unions.

Throwing out Communists from the labor union is easier said than done. The Taft-Hartley law, however, suddenly and almost unexpectedly gave the union a device for turning the trick.

The refusal of the C.I.O. to make use of the device was not surprising. That body always has been Communist dominated. Readers of this column may recall that last January I showed an almost exact parallel between the 1947 program of the C.I.O. and that of the Communist Party, and that at least 17 of the biggest big boys on the C.I.O. executive board are strongly pro-Communist.

But the refusal of the A.F.L. to sign the anti-Communist affidavits is as amazing as it is stupid. The Reds are infiltrating the A.F.L. for the sole purpose of snatching power away from Green, John L. Lewis and underlings.

Lewis, of all men, should understand this. Yet it was Lewis who turned the hesitant A.F.L. board strongly leftward the other day, putting out a resolution not to sign the sworn statements.

Lewis in the middle 1930s, pulling out of the A.F.L., mushroomed his then new C.I.O. into a national body of great power by using seasoned, ruthless and shrewd Communist organizers. Doubtless, he thought he could out the Muscovites when finished with them. Instead, they took him over and he had to find an excuse for resigning as head of the C.I.O.

While the men in the Kremlin no doubt enjoy a big laugh at finding the A.F.L. in position of helping the Red fifth-columnists hold beachheads inside its own organization, some other results are taking place not so helpful to either the A.F.L. or the Communists.

Indications are that mass indignation is quietly rising inside the ranks of the unions, especially those affiliated with A.F.L. If the National Labor Relations Board and the courts support the original ruling by NLRB legal counsel that no A.F.L. or C.I.O. union, however far down the feudal stairway, may have legitimate standing before the Board till the top bosses sign, some of the thus underprivileged unions may pull out of the national power pools.

Doubtless any serious threat in this direction would force top A.F.L. unionists to sign.

Here is the way the Taft-Hartley law might then work to help rid of the Russia Firsters in union jobs:

Supposedly all non-Communist union officials would sign affidavits. That would throw the onus of guilt on all who refused to sign. By their refusal, the officials would seriously impair the legal standing of their union, denying it recognition by the NLRB in elections. If union members were not too glibly intimidated and cowed they would then, supposedly, rise up and oust their Red bosses.

Meanwhile, if President Truman proved willing to enforce the law, as he has so pledged himself, he would have the FBI check records to apprehend all Communists and, long time follow-travelers who signed sworn statements they were not Communists. The President would then have the Attorney General hail these hordes into court on charges of perjury.

But top C.I.O. and A.F.L. officials have blocked off the eleven million card holders from the opportunity to make use of the anti-Communist provision of the new law. It is therefore time for the rank and file to make themselves heard or chuck in their cards and organize unions of their own. (Copyright 1947 by John F. Dille Co.)

Questions—Answers

Q—What European city is said to be built on bones?
 A—Leningrad, Russia, because so many laborers were killed in the difficult task of building the city on piles.

Q—Is the peacock the male or the female of the species?
 A—It is the male. The female is called the peahen.

Q—How many decisive naval battles were fought in World War I?
 A—There was only one naval battle in World War I, the Battle of Jutland.

Q—Does each member of Congress have a page?
 A—He does not. At the last session there were 71 Capitol pages. Generally their duties are those of messengers.

Q—What is a Spoonerism?
 A—The unintentional transposition of sounds and letters, or of the parts of words, in forming a sentence, such as "half-warmed fish" for "half-formed wish." It is so called from the late William A. Spooner, warden of New College, Oxford, England, to whom the practice is commonly attributed.

About Brass Knuckles

By FRANK TRIPP

Russia says there's no sense in discussing amendments to the international atomic control plan. Meaning it must be their way, or else. Okay, how about having it our way or else?

In April, '46, I suggested a way. You should have seen the letters I got. They ran all the way from threats to bomb my shelter to wanting me drawn and quartered.

That was back when the share-all-with-the-enemy-my-stuff-was-just-getting-started. When lots of folks were for making atomies for everybody from Hailo Solassie to Joe Stalin; let the whole world in on it—like they're in our pockets.

It's amazing what a difference just a few months make; how watching the frog to see how he'll jump gives a better idea where to pitch the spear if you want to get the frog.

I'm going to repeat what I wrote then. Here it is: "Suppose the United States established 40 or 50 secret as possible locations scattered over our vast expanse, from any one of which—even if all other posts were attacked and obliterated (not a likely prospect)—we could hand back to a sneak attacker all that he gave us—and then some."

"Equip every post with planes and enough atomic bombs to blow into kingdom come any outfit that monkey with the buzz saw. Up will go a lot of hands in holy horror, but that's the only language understood by the kind of aggressors we have encountered for the last 30 years."

We don't seem to care what we spend for defense. We shouldn't, but we might try to get our money's worth. This business of nations all the time wanting to lick the daylight out of each other is little more than grown-up emulating the school lout.

Almost everyone will remember a bully who pushed other kids off the walk, nudged their eyes in the forehead. The one day a calm and peaceful soul who would take no more locked brass knuckles may seem a far cry from atomic bombs. But are they?

What would more likely keep atomic bombs off our heads than the certainty that, unless he demolished every bit of this big county at one fell swoop, the aggressor would be paid in kind? Only that certainty will guarantee that aggression amounts to suicide.

Does anyone believe that Japan would have attacked Pearl Harbor if she had known what was going to happen to her?

The trouble with it is that we're too slow about getting tough. (Copyright 1947, General Features Corp.)

Oil Killing Fish
 Newport News, Va. (AP)—One of the biggest industries along Virginia's coastline—commercial fishing—has all but come to a halt at two nearby beaches because of oil-covered waters. "Fish are wallowing in black death," one veteran fisherman said after he measured the depth of the oil along the shore and found it six inches deep. Fishermen estimate that several million dollars has been lost in the past two years because of blige oil pumped into harbor waters by ships at anchor. They have asked Representative Bland (D.-Va.) to introduce a bill at the next session of congress to stiffen penalties for pumping oil in fishing waters.

One collision was so severe he required a complete replacement. That brought more trouble, because the replacement inadvertently was clothed in Federal uniform. A change was effected quickly.

Twice Too Often On Same Charge; Raphael Jailed

Joseph Raphael of 44 Meadow street learned in city court today that circumstances can change a judge's mind—and drastically.

Within a few hours he was arrested on Broadway near Greenback avenue by Officer Thomas McGrane.

was ordered for protection of "the welfare of citizens" employed at the Port or using its facilities.

Under an agreement with the city signed last June 12, Trailer-Boats leased dockage space at Steamboat Square in the former Hudson Navigation Company property, now owned by the city. They pay the city $100 a month.

Mr. Marsh wrote J. H. Dick Macey, vice president of Trailer-Boats, New York City, Sept. 26: "From the beginning of your business at the Port, your company has been involved in serious labor difficulties," the letter said.

"The City of Albany now finds itself in the position of having its entire Port facilities threatened by a complete tieup due to your involvement in this labor difficulty."

"I therefore deem it in the best interests of the city, and for the specific purpose of protecting the welfare of our citizens employed and using the Albany Port that your license be revoked 30 days after date of this notification."

The license agreement provided for revocation of the docking privileges upon 30 days' notice.

In New York City John E. Valance, office manager for Trailer-Boats, Inc., said the company had no immediate comment.

Suspicious Reception

London, Sept. 27 (AP)—Arabs, Jews and some Britons greeted with skepticism today Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones' statement before the United Nations yesterday that Britain was willing to surrender her Palestine mandate and ready to withdraw her troops from the Holy Land. British press comment generally expressed hope that the British stand might mean eventual peace for Palestine. In the Holy Land itself, however, the statement got a suspicious reception.

Local Firm Says Silver Prices Not Increasing in '47

Taking the lead in holding the price line in the silverware industry, The International Silver Company, the nation's largest producer of sterling and plated silverware, according to Samuel D. Scudder of the jewelry firm of Safford and Scudder, today announced that despite ever-increasing costs of operation, there will be no increase in the price of its products for the remainder of 1947.

"Furthermore, it is our intention to continue this hold-the-line policy as far as possible into the future," said President E. C. Stevens in a message received today by Safford & Scudder. "We have made no significant price increases in our nationally advertised lines since the war and at no time during the life of O.P.A. did we apply for price relief on any line in any quality or price range from sterling silver to the most expensive plate."

"Even though price increases are justified by much higher costs, we believe the interest of the silverware industry will be better served by keeping prices down rather than by raising them," Stevens said.

In celebration of its 100th anniversary of its 1847 Rogers Bros. line, International is producing a new plate pattern, "Remembrance."

Taft Backs Bid By Opening Welfare Plan

By JACK BELL

Portland, Ore., Sept. 27 (AP)—A powerful campaign to force early action by Congress on so-called "social" legislation, was mapped today by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) as an apparently integral part of his expected bid for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

Despite his forecast of opposition by other Republicans, the Ohio Senator stood committed today to head a drive for legislation expanding old-age assistance, increasing unemployment compensation, construct public housing and provide state-administered federal aid for health and education.

All this, Taft told an audience of Republican Club members at Goehart, Ore., last night, may cost the federal government $1,000,000,000 a year.

Conceding that the after-war budget situation may force a "modest beginning," nevertheless Taft said he believes "the Republican party will and should provide for these measures in the next session."

Home Nursing Hints For The New Mother

Often a new mother is frightened by the tiny bundle in her arms, afraid to touch it least she might injure it. Once used to the routine care of her baby, the mother may still be so conscious of the soft spots on her baby's head that she may not give the scalp proper care. A baby's head should be washed daily with soap and water, rinsed and dried thoroughly. It isn't unusual for scales to appear and following scales to be the best treatment for them: Oil baby's head well with warm olive oil at night. Before bathing, comb scalp with baby's small comb to loosen scales. After bath, rub in a little olive oil.

Don't be afraid of those soft spots. They should be protected from undue pressure but the necessary washing and combing won't do the slightest harm.

Home care of infants, children and adults, artificial respiration and how to meet countless home emergencies are described in our Reader Service booklet No. 81. Army Will Close Its Green Haven Prison

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Col. Benjamin B. Albert, commanding officer of the Green Haven U. S. disciplinary barracks, announced today that the army would close the $500,000 prison December 31 and return it to New York state.

Never used by the state since it was completed in May, 1942, the prison has been used by the army since October 1, 1943. The institution was the largest army prison of its kind in the country. It has a capacity of 2,250.

The present occupants, who are serving prison terms ranging from six months to life, will be transferred to other disciplinary barracks, Col. Albert said.

Own Bomb Hurts Boys

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Four boys were injured, one critically, in the explosion last night of a crude "bomb" they had built, police reported. Seven-year-old Vincent Simcone, the most seriously hurt, suffered severe internal injuries and burns of the face and hand, it was said. Hospital attendants said his condition was critical. Victor Buffalino, 10, was in serious condition following amputation of his right hand which was crushed and broken in the blast. The other boys, Ralph Quagaro, 10, and Carmen Monteforte, 9, were described as good. The explosion occurred in the rear of the Monteforte home. Police quoted one of the boys as saying that it was a powder they had found and placed in a tin can.

Can't Agree

Indianapolis, Sept. 27 (AP)—Representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) said today they planned no further conferences after failing to settle their differences in a two-day session. The meeting, called to discuss a solution of the deadlock resulting from the union's contract of policy, ended last night in a stalemate. The I.T.U. insisted on adhering to its policy of working only under "conditions of employment" plan rather than signing contracts with publishers under restrictions imposed by the Taft-Hartley Law.

May Quit A.F.L.

Indianapolis, Sept. 27 (AP)—Daniel J. Tobin, executive of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, says in a signed article prepared for the union's magazine that the union may be forced to withdraw from the American Federation of Labor to protest the membership under the Taft-Hartley Act. Tobin says that because the A.F.L. executive council could not sign non-Communist affidavits, which Robert N. Denham, chief counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, ruled it must sign to gain recourse to the board, the teamsters' union is left without protection as long as it remains in the A.F.L. "Apparently there is no answer except that we withdraw from the American Federation of Labor," Tobin said.

'Warmonger' Charge

Lake Success, Sept. 27 (AP)—Fighting from a tough minority position, Russia showed every evidence today of forcing its "warmonger" attack on the United States to a complete showdown in the United Nations while staving off as long as possible approval of a complete American-backed defeat on such American-backed issues as Greece and the veto. Andrei V. Vishinsky, Russia's deputy foreign minister, repeated and expanded at a news conference yesterday the "warmonger" charges he made before the assembly September 18.

Long Time for Diploma

Lewistown, Pa., Sept. 27 (AP)—L. Elmer Nolte, 76, had his high school diploma today—59 years after his graduation. Nolte, now retired, was the only member of the class to be graduated from Lewistown High School in 1888. No commencement exercises were held. The first graduation exercises were in 1890 but Nolte did not receive a certificate and the oversight, discovered only recently, was corrected yesterday when Superintendent of Schools C. V. Erdley presented Nolte his diploma.

Defendant's Counterclaim for Damages Is Returned as 'No Cause'

A verdict in the sum of $541.50, the full amount sued for, was awarded plaintiffs John Donovan of Middletown and James Eckerson of Milton in their action tried in Supreme court before Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth, in an action brought against Carl H. Schumacher of Middletown.

To action was for the balance due on the drilling of a well near Middletown. Defendant counter claimed for damages and in that action a no cause of action verdict was returned. George Rusk appeared for plaintiffs and George F. Roesch appeared for defendant.

The action of Theresa Woodleaf Kessel, retired Woodstock school teacher, against Alan Keith Ryerfort and others which was taken up for trial Friday will be continued next week. Plaintiff claimed that for injuries which she suffered when crates of cauliflower were thrown from a truck struck her as she was about to board a bus in Woodstock.

Plaintiff claims by her testimony that the bus stopped to pick her up and that as she was about to enter the bus she saw the truck approach and believing an accident was to happen took refuge in a field.

The road was partially blocked by a parked car near the bus and she claims the operator of the truck attempted to stop but was traveling at such speed that this was impossible. She said the truck swerved over the road and finally tipped over on its side depositing crates of cauliflower upon her. LeVan Haver appears for plaintiff and Reginald V. Spell appears for defendants.

First Snow Falls; Frost for Tonight

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—The first snow of the fall season in New York fell today in the northern part of the state and below and near-freezing weather continued in some parts of the state.

Light snow fell in the Saratoga Lake-Lake Placid area in northern New York.

Snow flurries were reported at Warrensburg and Chestertown in the northeastern part of the state where the mercury plummeted to 18 degrees. Ice formed on small ponds in the area.

The Weather Bureau predicted frost tonight in both eastern and western New York and Sunday generally fair and somewhat warmer.

Blames Export of Grain

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—A government move to curb grain speculation and to stabilize prices by an assertion by the nation's big exchanges that federal buying for export is to blame for skyrocketing prices. "The answer to lower grain prices is to stop exporting grain," declared J. O. McClintock, president of the Chicago Board of Trade. McClintock said the exchange "are not offering that a solution" and are only interested in bringing out "the true facts." Speaking for the Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City markets, he proposed a congressional investigation.

Kingston High and Highland Battle to Scoreless Deadlock

4,000 Pack Stadium for Renewal of Ulster Classic; See Defensive Duel

All the spectators—nearly 4,000 of them—laughed when the public address system announcer informed the assembled multitude at municipal stadium last night that Kingston High welcomed Highland to the annual "baseball" classic. But apparently the football players took him seriously for they proceeded to push and maul each other around for a 0-0 deadlock. Not even Ralph Branca and Allie Reynolds could improve on that.

Thus, another Kingston-Highland football struggle was written into the record books as a Mexican standoff which the southern Ulster cohorts rightfully claimed a "moral victory", something that isn't tangible but folks remember it for a long time. The Highland motorcade went whooping through the city streets on the road back home as if they had scored a major upset. And maybe they did.

Hard Play Featured
The packed house witnessed a high school football struggle that had artistic shortcomings but never lacked for solid, bone-crushing line play as two stalwart defenses smashed back everything that came its way.

The statistics say that Kingston outstruck the "Little Davids" 103 yards to 37 from scrimmage but the predicted two to four touchdown margin of victory for the DUSO Colossus never materialized. Kingston's passers were harried and thrown flat on their faces, the punting was hurried and ineffective, the offensive blocking sluggish and strong suspicion exists that Kingston lacks breakaway, climax runner who can bust up a ball game with one dramatic gallop.

Couch Frank La Falce, who came to town to do battle with the master, had his gridders keyed up to a furious intensity. They attempted passes and punts. They exposed weaknesses to Mike Rlenzo's slashing slants off the tackles in one Maroon onslaught that carried 58 on straight power plays, but when the blue chips were down, they were ready. The Kingston defense reacted similarly and thereby hangs the tale of the 0-0 deadlock.

Maroon Breaks Loose
Kingston waited until the fourth period before it gave its frigid followers something to cheer when Mike Rlenzo blasted the Highland line like it was paper mache and passed 28 yards to Joe Albany for a sustained march that came to grief on the Highland 17. That was the decider, the culmination of the night for the Burkemans.

Highland reached the Maroon's 14 yard line in the second period and got as far as the 13 in the third but each time, the Burkemans geared themselves for a tremendous defensive thrust and slowed the invaders for huge losses.

Passante Stars
The first Highland threat started on Kingston's 45 in the second period. With Eddie Passante doing the bulk of the carrying, the Highlanders gained first down on the 34 yard line. After two running plays and a pass failed, Ducate faded back and hit Murphy on the 14 yard line for first down. The Maroon defense showed its mettle by smearing Passante for an 11-yard loss and eventually took over on the 25 as the half ended.

Zatorelli recovered Ghene's fumble on a punt on Kingston's 25 in the third period. A short line buck and then a 10-yard burst by Passante carried to a first down on the Kingston 13, but again the Maroon stiffened. Passante lost five to the 18, a flanker play lost two more and the visitors kicked to Kingston's 6. Rlenzo calmly bucked out of the end zone to Kingston's 34 to nullify the threat.

Maroon Starts Drive
A pass interception by Frank Nowaczek on the Kingston 25 led to the Maroon's only serious threat of the game — a 58-yard

Spud Chandler and Harry Taylor, the two lame-armed hurlers who haven't been of much use to their respective teams during the past month, were in position to day to become two world series "leopards" for Bucky Harris and Burt Shotton.

Chandler, the veteran right-hander of the New York Yankees, made his first start since July 10 yesterday and while charged with the Yankees' 3-2 loss to the Boston Red Sox, showed enough to raise Harris' hopes. The determined Georgian yielded two walks and two hits for all of Boston's runs in the first inning. He fanned three straight in the second, surrendered a walk and another hit in the third and chalked up another strikeout in the third.

Arm Felt Good
Chandler had had only one other turn on the mound since July 10. That was on Sept. 1, when he pitched one third of an inning in relief.

"No complaints," said Chandler after the game. "Of course, it took me an inning to get on the beam. But I experienced no pain in the elbow and used fair stuff. I won't know definitely until tomorrow. If it doesn't stiffen on me tomorrow, I'm ready for duty."

The defeat was Chandler's fifth against nine victories.

Taylor, the brilliant right-handed rookie of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who hasn't pitched since August 18 when he was forced to retire in a game with the St. Louis Cardinals because of a stiffness in his pitching elbow, also made a surprise appearance Thursday night against the Philadelphia Phils. He pitched two scoreless relief innings and pronounced himself fit for action against the Yankees.

"It was a little too chilly to throw," Taylor said. "Especially my curve. Normally I snap it off, which puts pressure on the elbow. But the other night I just put some spin on the ball—more wrist action than elbow action." Taylor, who will work three more innings against the Braves tomorrow, won 10 and lost five this season. He owns the sharpest curve on the Dodger staff. His control was a bit off as he walked
